City Council Mum About Fishing Pier

Twenty interested Ocean Beach citizens sat in council meeting Monday from the opening hour of 10 a. m. to 11:45 without hearing a word in regard to the proposed Ocean Beach fishing pier.

As a motion was made for adjournment City Manager Lockwood announced that a delegation was there from Ocean Beach who would like to know respecting the pier. No comment was offered by council members so R. Nagel and Frank McElwee rose to inquire when the matter would come up, whether at a special meeting they were to hold Wednesday or at the following regular Monday meeting. Mayor Irones said it would not be brought up Wednesday but otherwise could give no information. Warburton said unless the committe had further information to offer it was not necessary that they appear.

Councilman Bennett of this district was out of the city and as the proposition had no champion present, it was allowed to lay on the table, where it will remain until motion is duly passed to again consider it.

The pier matter will most likely be brought out again next Monday and citizens should not lose interest but be there in force, to show the council we actually want the pier.

Petitions asking the council to build a pier here from money in the unappropriated balance fund were placed in the public business houses Thursday morning. Be sure and sign one of these right away so that they may be available before Monday with a large list of signers.

1935 Exposition Plans Progress Rapidly

Formation of campaign committees in every community in the county has progressed to the point where the organization of this county-wide group will be perfected this week, according to G. W. Anderson, chairman of the exposition county committee.

Anderson, with Crowell D. Eddy, executive secretary of the committee, completed a tour of all county points in the last few days. They reported a splendid spirit of cooperation, and enthusiam which reflected the eager desire of county leaders to do every thing possible to raise the half-million dollar fund needed to finance the proposed California Pacific International exposition.

"The County organization will be perfected this week," said Anderson, "and I have reported to Frank G. Belcher, exposition president and O. W. Cotton, campaign chairman, that every county committee will be ready to go to work on the fund raising when the word is given."

Civic and business leaders of the county, city and state as well as high Naval and Army officers are included in the personnel of the honorary committee which will have an important part in promoting and conducting the proposed exposition.

COLORED BOY DROWNS IN CHANNEL

At 5:45 p. m. Tuesday, Ocean Beach police station received a call from the Ocean Village hotel, that Horace Small, 14-year-old negro boy, son of the cook, Mrs. Beatrice Small, was believed drowned. The boy had gone swimming in the Mission bay channel about 4:30 and had not been seen since. Two Japanese fisherman on the bridge believed they had seen him go down.

The boy was considered almost a man for he was 6 feet in height, however, only a boy in years.

The tide was going out rapidly from Mission bay the evening this drowning was reported and nothing has been seen of the body up to Thursday noon.

MISSION BAY BOUNDARIES TO BE SETTLED AT ONCE

Warner I. Praul, of the office of the Attorney-General of California, will be in San Diego, Friday, August 17, to confer with property owners around Mission Bay State Park with a view of quieting title through a friendly suit.

Mr. Praul, in a recent conference with Assemblyman George B. Bowers stated that he has orders to proceed with the settlement of Mission Bay problems as rapidly as possible. Progress heretofore has been impeded for lack of funds for the payment of fees for the costs of preparation of maps and the description of adjoining property. Mr. Praul stated, however, that these difficulties are now being satisfactorily surmounted.

MUSINGS WHILE MEANDERING

(By Merrill Stuart)

WHAT is a fishing pier?

An Eden for fishermen. A few planks poised twixt sea and sky; water surging heavily beneath; turbulence of waves pounding shivering piles; mystery of unknown currents, gamble of shifting sands; sparkle of sunshine above, clean-swept tangy air; delight undiluted—that's what! A place where worries are dropped overboard, depression sinks to the bottom, and harrowing thoughts cast into the sea's perspective. A place where you work harder than you ever did in your life—hopefully anticipating. A spot where you learn to think like fish; ponder upon their ways, what they see, hear, feel; marvel at their stupidity when caught by your cunning. A locale where you can indulge in the king of sports with the comforting thought you're not going to be seasick. A habitat for bigger and better fish stories—sea serpents and such! (May their tales ring true!) A place where defeat is taken with philosophy and where patience and perseverance are sometimes rewarded. Then go home after care-free hours to healthy slumber and dreams of that wild finny giant to be caught next day sure! The fisherman is an optimist born. Life's greatest adventures have happened on water; his ancestors were sea adventurers, and why not he?

WHY is a fishing pier?

Just so you can be happy, all ye Ike Waltons, in the supreme sport of fishing. So you can rejoice in the mystery that makes of it the most exasperating and alluring of pastimes. Living for that day when you'll pull in yellowtail from kelp beds, gamy barracuda, maybe glimpse of huge seabass, a nibbling shark if you're lucky. Joy in the unexpected that's always going to happen. And by way of putting something into idle minds analyzing reasons why fish don't bite if nothing else; being alive to sight and sound and touch; concentration, patience; gaining new viewpoints about life from distant horizon and endless deep. Thrilling to tell world of your full days, forgetting empty ones. Piling up your piscatorial knowledge generally. And if you're a real fisherman what's a sea urchin, as well as poet, artist and romanticist all rolled into one, you'll become enamored of nocturnal beauty of the universe out there upon the end of our pier. Stealthy soothing noises from nowhere; stars blinking watchfully; mysterious ripples upon expanse of water; solitude, peace: and moonlight with shadows that may frighten the fish away, but not so nymphs and mermaids! Oh, there's joy upon a fishing pier—and these a few reasons why.

WHERE is a fishing pier?

In our own town of Ocean Beach, of course; joining in the long string of them up and down the whole coast of California. Strongly built, and built by desire of people who know what they want for pleasure and profit. We're a part of California with its far-flung reputation for size and number of its game fish; its angling and fishing grounds greatest in the world; its power to attract thousands of anglers in ever-increasing numbers from everywhere. Perfect climate; environments of surf and snow-line; enticements of life out of doors. What more is there, pray? And we, of Ocean Beach, why shouldn't we share in the greatness and glory of the Golden State? And now—

WHEN is a fishing pier?

When the councilmanic mind works as a unit—should that miracle ever come to pass. When there are a few more of the law's delays; when technicalities crop up thicker than leaves on a tree; when pros and cons are debated forever and forever; and when the money falls like manna from heaven, or somewheres—then, maybe!

Public Meeting Tuesday To Hear Candidates

Under auspices of the Ocean Beach Chamber of Commerce a public meeting has been called for next Tuesday evening, August 21, to give all candidates for office an opportunity to present their argument why they are seeking a certain office and why they believe themselves to be qualified to hold the positions they seek.

This meeting will be held at the woman's clubhouse at 7:30 p. m. and all voters are urged to attend.

GOOD ATTENDANCE AT MONDAY NOON MEETING

I. J. Claspill was chairman of the day at Monday's luncheon with Ed Wickern being the first speaker at a round table conference. Rollin Reed followed with a brief explanation of the new Modernization Credit Plan being inaugurated. Dr. J. W. Wilhoit gave his five minutes to Capt. Richard N. Thompson who spoke on foreign government and our own. Heber Hartvigsen reported that word had been received from Major Bowers in regard to settling of leases on Mission bay and it was believed now would be the appropriate time to again interest Ocean Beach people and San Diego in the building of a recreation building with equipment near the street car junction on the bay side.

T. J. Miller of Seattle was a guest of Dr. Felt, Capt. Thompson was a guest of Dr. Wilhoit.

Visiting Kiwanians were J. W. Harrison of Altadena; Hervey F. Smith of Tuscon, Arizona; J. H. Westover of Yuma, Arizona; and Frank C. Vincent of Sacramento.

OCEAN BEACH MERCHANTS DRUB LA JOLLA 9-3

Unleashing a powerful batting attack the Ocean Beach Merchants piled up an early lead to defeat the La Jolla All-Nations team for their third straight victory last Sunday by the score of 9-3. Altho off to a wobbly start when the first three men to bat for La Jolla hit safely to score 2 runs, Reider the starting chucker for Ocean Beach then settled down and held the visitors scoreless for the next five innings. Smith, who relieved Reider for the last three innngs allowed three hits and one run. Fouls and Reider proved that they are a dangerous pair at the plate both hitting home runs, while Moore, centerfielder, was the leading hitter of the day getting three bingles out of five times at bat.

Next Sunday the recently reorganized Ocean Beach ball club will play the La Jolla merchants team at the Ocean Beach ball park in a game which should be filled with plenty of action.

The score:

O. B. Merchants	211 310 02x	9	14	0
L. J. All-nations	200 000 001	3	11	2

NEWS EDITOR NOW GRANDAD

Tuesday morning at 5:30 an eight pound boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Wylie, jr. The young fellow is a husky and fine looking youngster and will be known as Charles E. Wylie, III.

As this is the first grandchild in the Hartvigsen family, naturally we are all feeling mighty fine, but no better than Grandad Wylie, living out near Emerald Hills golf course, who has the honor of having son and grandson continuing his name.

Our daughter Frances, married here nearly two years ago, has only a limited acquaintance at Ocean Beach, but those friends we know will be pleased to learn of the new arrival.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Cords returned home recently from a motor trip to Nebraska and as far east as Missouri. In Colorado they stopped for trout fishing at Tincup, where they met and visited Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Neiderhut of 2086 Bacon street and Mr. and Mrs. George F. Nullmeyer of 5075 Narragansett avenue. The Neiderhut's have a farm home at Tincup, Colorado, where the Beachites enjoyed a splendid time together.

Indoor Sports Enjoy Summer Day at Beach

The old Merry-go-round building on Abbott street was the meeting place of merry picnicers last Sunday. The picnic was given for the Indoor Sports, a group of invalids, by the staff of their small newspaper, the Indoor Sport's Monthly.

The building was turned into a newspaper office for the day. The long table was covered with a newspaper tablecloth. The centerpiece was a miniature telegraph pole from which wires lead to bulletin boards at each end of the table. At one side of the room there were two smaller tables, one holding a typewriter, the other a mimeograph machine, both to be used later on in the afternoon.

Lunch was served at one o'clock. Everyone brought his own sandwiches. Cake, coffee, cream and sugar were furnished by the staff.

After lunch several games were played, and then the Indoor Sports went to work and put out a souvenir copy of their newspaper. A full staff, from managing editor down, was named for the Sunday number, and with pencils and paper "the gang," as they call themselves, wrote copy for the "extra." After the material had been gathered together, the managing editor turned it over to the editor, who is also chief stencil-cutter, and the paper "went to press". It was then "delivered" to the guests. The paper was quite novel and caused many laughs. News items were alarming to say the least, and many Indoor Sports learned things about themselves that they had not known before.

The newspaper staff for the souvenir copy were Josephine Anderson, Wellington Stewart, Henry Williams, Evaline McKee, Jack Neill, Mabel Ellison, Margaret Funchion, Irene Chappell, Mrs. Matthews and the printer, Lt. Y. N. Adams.

The members of the staff sponsoring the party were Mrs. Y. N. Adams, Mrs. A. T. Matthews, Mrs. Josephine Anderson, Wellington Stewart, Henry Williams and Evaline McKee.

The library is a busy place these days. In July 9,070 books circulated—an increase of 110 over July 1933. The tourists from the warmer climates appreciate the library service very much.

BRAILLE CLUB PLANS PICNIC HERE

The always happy occasion when Braille club members and friends gather at Ocean Beach for the picnic and annual meeting which closes its year's activities will be held today when the organizaton will be host at luncheon. This will be served at the picnic grounds on the beach at Santa Monica St., and will be followed by business and a program in the adjoining recreation center.

An added note of cheer will accrue through a report on activities of the salesroom at Fifth Ave.

COUNTY RECORDER BADLY INJURED IN CRASH

County Recorder Ora M. Swope is in a serious condition in Quintard hospital and Theron Reid, 17, was believed to be near death as a result of a Pershing dr. collision Monday in which two automobiles overturned.

Doctors said Swope may have a fractured skull. He also suffered from a crushed chest and other injuries. He was conscious but weak hospital attendants said. Reid, in the county hospital, had a fractured skull, fractured leg and a fractured wrist.

Band Concert Tonite 7:30 Newport.

Come Hear Band Concert Tonight

A band concert by the Municipal band of some fifty pieces will be played at Ocean Beach, TONIGHT, Friday evening, August 17.

These men are all experienced musicians, rendering a high type of band music. They are enabled to give concerts to us and other sections of the city through the SERA, by whom they are employed.

Seats and lights will be arranged for the musicians at the foot of Newport avenue, and it is expected a large number of Ocean Beach residents and visitors will be out to take advantage of the program.

There is no charge of any kind for this concert which is billed to start at 7:30 p. m.

Chamber Commerce Hold Regular Meeting

Ocean Beach Chamber of Commerce met in regular session, Monday evening, with a very good attendance.

A report was made by Dr. Bailey on actions of the city council the same day regarding the proposed fishing pier for Ocean Beach.

A number of communications, mostly from vacationists, though some from home-seekers, were read.

A committee was appointed to prepare lights, seats and other conveniences, for the SERA Municipal band concert to be held Friday evening of this week, August 17.

Other routine business was conducted and some complaints heard regarding the influx of Japanese to this beach community during the present summer. It is reported a survey was ordered that the matter may be gone into more fully at a later date.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rhodes were visitors at the meeting. Mr. Rhodes is superintendent of streets and the city operating department; many items regarding his interests here were taken up and he promised cooperation, which has usually been given advantageously in the past.

A meeting of candidates was ordered set and advertised for Tuesday evening, August 21, when all those running for office are invited to present their qualifications to our people.

Crowell D. Eddy spoke for the 1933 California Pacific International Exposition and asked that a soliciting committee be appointed from this section.

A committee was appointed to circulate petitions to the city council asking for the fishing pier at Ocean Beach.

Several candidates for office were then offered an opportunity to speak, after the close of the regular business session.

OCEAN BEACH MAN TAKES POISON BY MISTAKE, EXPIRES

After taking a dose of ant poison, which he mistook for a digestive medicine, John Rhodes, 80, 1071 Sunset Cliffs blvd., died last week in county hospital, Dave Gershon, deputy coroner, reported.

Rhodes became violently ill within a few minutes after taking what he thought was medicine for indigestion. He was given first aid treatment by Ocean Beach police, who later took him to the hospital, where he died within an hour.

INDIVIDUAL INSTRUCTION MAKING SCHOOL GROW

These are interesting and important days for the Warren-Walker school altho it is vacation time. The school is changing its location from the second floor of the Kraft building to 4867 Santa Cruz avenue. Mrs. Walker began her work in February 1933 with two boys. The school year 1933-34 saw an enrollment of twenty-one while the summer session which closed July 27th this year, enrolled twenty-five. The rapidly increasing enrollment and lack of playground facilities in the former location made a move imperative.

The little private school is proving to be a real asset to Ocean Beach. Mrs. Walker brings to her work a broad experience with children and in various types of schools. Her two assistants of last year are both returning and the improved facilities now available will make possible the addition of kindergarten work for which there had been a definite call. Milford Ellison will direct the art work. Arrangements are being made for class instruction in dancing.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Douthit and family of Phoenix, Ariz., have gone to Los Angeles, after spending a few weeks at Camp Comfort on Narragansett Ave.

Murder of Dollfuss by Nazis Creates Serious Situation in Europe—Bandit Dillinger Slain by Federal Agents in Chicago.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

© by Western Newspaper Union.

ENGELBERT DOLLFUSS, intrepid little chancellor of Austria, has fallen a victim of his political enemies. A group of 141 Nazis, disguised in uniforms, broke into the chancellory in Vienna and made prisoners of Dollfuss and a number of his ministers. The chancellor was beaten and shot and left to bleed to death, his captors refusing to permit a physician or a priest to be called. Without revealing the fact that they had murdered the dictator, the Nazis then surrendered on promise of safe conduct across the German border, being aided in the negotiations by K. Rieth, the German minister to Austria. When it was learned that Dollfuss had been killed the promise was revoked and the Nazis were locked up.

Engelbert Dollfuss

Meanwhile another small bunch of Nazis had seized the radio broadcasting office and had given out a statement that Dollfuss had resigned and would be succeeded as chancellor by Dr. Anton Rintelen, the minister to Italy. Rintelen was called to Vienna immediately, put in a cell and there shot seriously. Officials said he tried to commit suicide.

President Miklas called on Dr. Kurt Schuschnigg, minister of education under Dollfuss, to head the government, and he, together with Former Vice Chancellor Emil Fey and Prince Ernst von Starhemberg, the vice chancellor, took charge of the situation with the heimwehr to back them up. Soon afterwards it was announced that Von Starhemberg had been made chancellor. In the province of Styria and some other regions civil war broke out almost at once and the Nazis, strong in numbers especially in Graz, were desperately fighting with the regular army and the heimwehr.

Italy, France and Great Britain were conferring as to the best measures to take to carry out their pledges of last February that the integrity of Austria should be maintained. Italy, especially, was determined that the Austrian Nazis should not gain control of the country and was ready for armed intervention. Mussolini had 75,000 troops encamped near the Austrian frontier and personally assured Prince Von Starhemberg that he would defend Austrian independence. The French professed to look on the Nazi revolt as an internal event not warranting intervention at present, but the question of maintaining Austrian independence is one of the few in which they agree entirely with the Italians.

Naturally, everyone blamed Germany for the tragedy in Vienna, for the German Nazis have carried on a long and persistent campaign against Dollfuss, making use of the radio without restraint. Hitler's government, however, tried to avoid implication in the Vienna uprising. Minister Reith was recalled to Berlin because of his unauthorized action in helping the Nazi group, and Hitler appointed Franz von Papen to succeed him. The border was closed to all political fugitives from Austria. The German press, always under control, was careful not to express joy over the killing of Dollfuss.

On the side lines, waiting to see what course would prove most advantageous to themselves, were Czechoslovakia, Jugo-Slavia and Hungary.

The situation in central Europe thus was packed with dynamite almost as it was twenty years ago, and in all the world capitals the danger of serious international repercussions was recognized. Another general European war may be avoided for the present, but bloody conflict in Austria seemed certain.

FOR the first time in history a President of the United States set foot on Hawaiian soil when Mr. Roosevelt landed at Hilo. He went ashore there especially to visit the great Kilaeuea volcano, and being driven to the edge of the huge firepit of Halemaumau, he made a sacrifice to Pele, the fire goddess, by tossing a bunch of red ohello berries into the crater. The city of Hilo gave the President a warm welcome and staged a pageant. Then he proceeded to Honolulu for the main events of his visit. His activities there included a review of 15,000 troops and an inspection of the Pearl Harbor naval base. He was entertained at luncheon by Maj. Gen. B. H. Wells, commandant of the army department, attended a picnic given by the Harvard club, ate dinner with Gov. Joseph Poindexter and, after a reception at the governor's mansion retired to the Royal Hawaiian hotel at Waikiki beach.

MINNEAPOLIS became the labor riot center of the country, the striking truckmen there and the police engaging in bloody fights; and, as in San Francisco, much of the violence was attributed to Communist agitators. The striking drivers sought the stoppage of all industry but only the cab drivers joined them.

Father Francis J. Haas and E. H. Dunnigan, federal labor conciliators, offered a plan of settlement which was accepted by the strikers, but the employers turned it down, asserting that the Reds were behind the strike and that they would have no dealings with Communists. Gov. Floyd Olson immediately declared martial law in the city and Hennepin county and Adjutant General Walsh of the National Guard became dictator. The decree even muzzled the press to a considerable degree. Four thousand guardsmen were mobilized and motor patrols toured the streets at intervals.

Following a conference of delegates, J. J. Noonan, president of the Licensed Tugmen's Protective association, announced in Detroit that a unanimous vote bound all unions and continued strike action in demand of an eight-hour day and a $2,400 yearly wage. Noonan said the next move was up to the shipowners, chiefly represented by John W. Cushing, Chicago, and G. A. Tomlinson, Cleveland.

About ninety tugs have been tied up at Great Lakes ports since the men left their jobs June 1, Noonan said.

JOHN DILLINGER, murderer, bank robber, outlaw and most notorious of America's modern desperadoes, is dead. Traced to Chicago, he ventured a visit to a moving picture theater to see a film of the life of a man who ended in the electric chair. As he came out of the theater federal agents and a police squad from East Chicago, Indiana, surrounded him. He drew his pistol and was instantly shot to death. Melvin H. Purvis, chief of the investigating forces of the Department of Justice in Chicago, led his men in this final and successful effort to get Dillinger, dead or alive. The outlaw had sought to disguise himself by having his face lifted and his hair dyed and by growing a short mustache. His finger tips, also, had been treated with acid. His identification, however, was immediate and certain.

John Dillinger

It was credibly reported that a woman had given the tip that resulted in the killing of Dillinger, but naturally, her name was not made public, for five members of his gang are still at large and might be expected to avenge their leader. The informant is due to receive at least a considerable share of the rewards offered by the governments of the United States, Indiana and Minnesota for information leading to the capture or death of Dillinger. These rewards total $15,000.

Attorney General Cummings in Washington was elated by the news of Dillinger's death. He warmly praised the work of Mr. Purvis and his men, who had devoted most of their time for four and a half months to the elimination of the desperado.

Three of the Dillinger gang besides the leader have been killed in battle with the law. Eight others are in prison, two of them under sentence of death.

WITH the collapse of the general strike in the San Francisco area and the defeat of the radical element among the workers, the longshoremen at all ports of the Pacific coast voted to submit to arbitration their differences with the ship owners. The latter had agreed to arbitrate and at the same time had promised to bargain collectively with other maritime unions. In the San Francisco bay region there were 108 vessels in port and the work of loading and unloading these went on rapidly. In other respects normal conditions there were restored. The "vigilante" bands continued their raids on Communist hangouts and the police arrested a number of radicals. The hope that the alien agitators captured can be deported was rather dashed by the attitude assumed by Secretary of Labor Perkins in the matter of deportations. She is waiting for the next congress to pass the leniency measure that would give her dictatorial power in these cases.

OLE H. OLSON is in the saddle as the acting governor of North Dakota and matters political were quieter in Bismarck. The house of the state legislature called into session by William Langer, the ousted governor, went home after naming a committee to consider impeachments. The senate couldn't muster a quorum and so it quit.

Acting Governor Olson declared a moratorium on every form of debt where the debtor can show inability to pay. It is designed to protect the farmer, small business man and home owner from foreclosure.

ONE HUNDRED miles of the Texas Gulf coast was swept by a terrific tropical storm that cost possibly a score of lives and did vast damage to crops and other property. An eighty-mile gale drove a tidal wave six miles inland, flooding towns, trapping the residents, breaking communication lines and smashing boats and buildings.

ALL American possessions except the Philippines, Samoa and Guam are now under the direction of a single government agency. The division of territories and island possessions, created by President Roosevelt under authority of the government economy act, has taken over control of Hawaii, Alaska, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin islands. Previously Puerto Rico was under the War department and the others under the Interior department.

The navy will continue to govern Guam and Samoa, and the War department will have charge of the Philippines until they accept independence voted them by the last congress.

IN AN executive order given out in Washington, the President set in motion his great reforestation program designed to help the plains area of the Middle West. He allocated $15,000,000 from the $525,000,000 drouth relief fund for the beginning of work on a $75,000,000 forest shelter belt a hundred miles wide and extending more than 1,000 miles through the heart of the drouth area from the Canadian border to the Texas Panhandle.

Announcement of the President's action and of the gigantic undertaking was made by Secretary Wallace, who authorized the forest service to use up to $10,000,000 of the $15,000,000 allocated to begin work on the project immediately.

AS PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT aboard the cruiser Houston was nearing Hawaii he took time to announce the membership of the national mediation board for the settlement of railroad disputes. The men he appointed are:

William M. Leiserson, Yellow Springs, Ohio, for the term ending February, 1936.

James W. Carmalt, Washington, D. C., for the term ending February, 1936.

John Carmody, now chief engineer of the federal emergency relief administration, for the term ending February, 1936.

The President also named Murray Latimer chairman of the railroad retirement board, created by a recent act of congress.

MOSCOW has finally realized that it cannot get trade credits in the United States until it in some way squares up the old czarist debts owed in this country. Therefore Ambassador Troyanovsky and Secretary of State Hull have begun preliminary conversations on the subject, at the instance of the Soviet government.

Russia owes the United States government $337,000,000 which this country lent to the czarist and Kerensky governments during the war. The Reds repudiated these debts when they seized control of Russia. The Roosevelt administration has firmly refused trade credits to the Soviet government until some sort of an agreement is reached on these debts. Although the Reconstruction Finance corporation has had an export-import bank set up for months to finance Russian trade, not a single loan has been made. Under terms of the Johnson act, which prevents new American loans to foreign debt defaulters, the bank has held that it cannot extend credit to Russia.

HAVING given nearly three months to the study of the nation's air defense, the board headed by Newton D. Baker has submitted a report which calls for immediate strengthening of the army air corps to meet "the most serious war threat against our country that can be conceived." The report says the army air forces are decidedly inferior to American navy and civil units that lead the world in strength and efficiency. The budget bureau and niggardly appropriations by congress are held to blame.

Newton D. Baker

Shortage of modern equipment, resulting from the reduced appropriations and stagnation in promotion of army air officers, the board warned, has affected the morale of the entire army.

The report scoffed at reports the United States was vulnerable to air invasion. It also opposed the unification of army and navy air forces under a separate national defense unit.

First giving assurance that its recommendations do not embrace a national policy of aggression, the board proposed:

1. A national aviation policy to be retained for a "reasonable" length of time.
2. Effectuation of the 1926 act which called for expansion of the army air corps to 2,320 planes with a larger ratio of combat units.
3. Steady program of procurement which would keep alive the nation's airplane building industry.
4. Drastic changes in the air corps regulations which would increase flying hours per pilot from 150 to 200 hours to 300 yearly; revisions in the promotion system for officers; increased training in flying under dangerous conditions and with instruments common on commercial planes.
5. Consolidation of the joint agencies of army and navy, such as the joint munitions board, the joint aeronautics board, etc., under the authority of the army and navy board functioning as a superior board for both departments.
6. Purchase of small inexpensive commercial planes for use in training pilots in group night flying.
7. Continuation of experiments with small non-rigid airships as partial substitutes for observation balloons.
8. Increase of the air corps personnel by 403 officers.

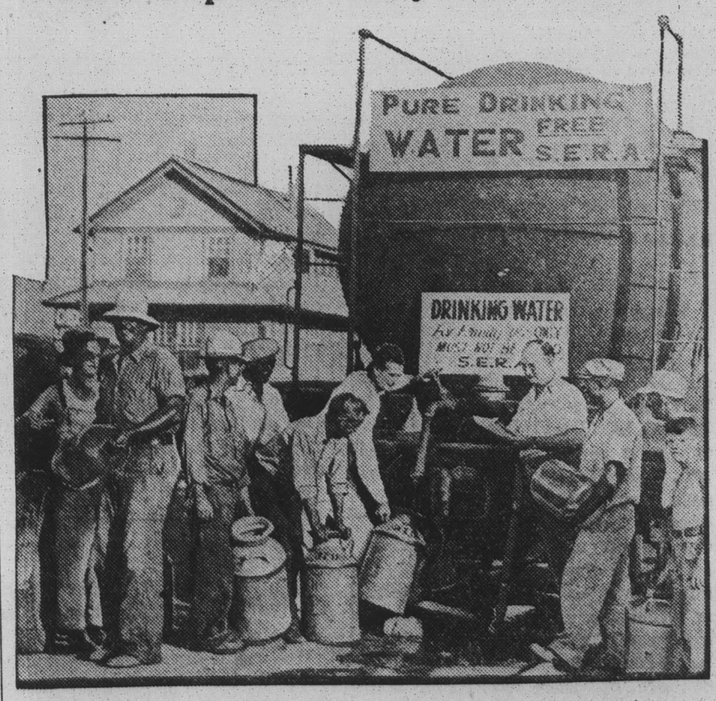
How Imperial Valley Gets Water



Imperial valley ranchers in California are facing their worst and last water shortage on the Colorado river. The photograph shows domestic water being distributed to rural residents of the valley by SERA officials from one of the carloads shipped into this great agricultural area. Millions of gallons of domestic water will have to be shipped into the valley during the present drought period. The water is being furnished by the Southern Pacific railroad from its wells.

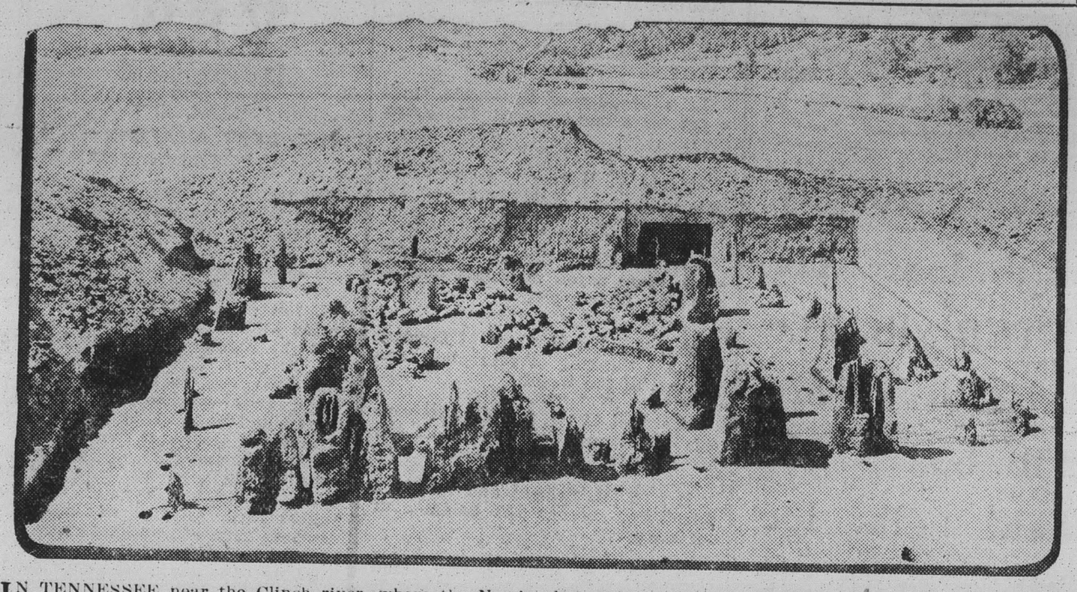
Ancient Civilization Uncovered in Tennessee



IN TENNESSEE near the Clinch river, where the Norris dam is being built, archeologists have uncovered a prehistoric civilization. First an Indian burial mound dating from long before the arrival of Columbus was excavated. Below this was found a much earlier building containing 17 well preserved skeletons, and still further down were discovered remains of an ancient temple, shown in the photograph.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

PETER SAVES A FRIEND

PETER RABBIT sat in a thicket of young trees on the edge of the Green Forest. So far as he knew he was all alone. It was very quiet there and it wasn't long before he was dozing. Now, Peter is a light sleeper, as all little people who never know when they may have to run for their lives must be. By and by he awoke with a start, and he was very wide awake, indeed. Something had wakened him, but just what it was he couldn't say.

For a few minutes he heard nothing and saw nothing. Then, near the other edge of the thicket, he heard a great rustling of dry leaves. For just an instant Peter was startled, but only for an instant. His long ears told him at once that that noise was made by some one scratching among the leaves, and he knew that no one who did not wear feathers could scratch like that.

It Was Chewink, the Towhee, Sometimes Called the Ground Robin.

"Now, who can that be?" thought Peter, and stole forward very softly. Presently he saw the brown leaves which carpeted the ground fly this way and that, and in the midst of them was an exceedingly busy person, just a little smaller than Welcome Robin, scratching away for dear life. Every now and then he picked up something.

His head, throat, back, and breast were black. Beneath he was white. His sides were reddish brown. His tail was black and white and the longer feathers of his wings were edged with white. It was Chewink, the Towhee, sometimes called the Ground Robin.

Peter kept perfectly still, for it was fun to watch some one who hadn't the least idea he was being watched. Chewink's feet were made for scratching and he certainly knew how to use them. For some time Peter sat there watching. Just as he had about made up his mind to make his presence known and have a bit of morning gossip, he happened to look out beyond the edge of the little thicket. There he saw something red. It was something alive, for it was moving very slowly and cautiously toward the place where Chewink was scratching, forgetful of everything but his breakfast. It was Reddy Fox, and quite plainly Reddy was hoping to catch Chewink.

Suddenly Peter thumped the ground with his feet. It was his danger signal which all his friends know. Then he turned and scampered, lipperty-lipperty-lip, to a bramble-tangle not far behind him. At that thump Chewink instantly flew up in a little tree. Then he saw Reddy Fox and began to scold. As for Reddy, he looked over toward the bramble-tangle and snarled.

"I'll get you one of these days, Peter Rabbit," said he. "I'll get you one of these days and pay you up for cheating me out of a breakfast." Without so much as a glance at Chewink, Reddy turned and trotted off, trying to look as if he had never entertained such a thought as trying to catch Chewink.

QUESTION BOX
By ED WYNN . . . The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am a baker and keep a bakery shop. I notice I am losing a lot of money on the doughnuts I make to sell. I can't charge any more than I do now for them. The reason I lose money is, I use too much dough to make them with. What can I do so as to not use as much dough as I use now to make the doughnuts?

Yours truly,
MacAROONS.

Answer—Make the holes in the doughnuts larger and you won't use as much dough.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am a girl going to high school and I met a boy whom I like real well. He takes me home every day. He seems to be very nice, but his hands and neck always look unclean to me. I am fifteen years of age, and my hands are very clean, while he is seventeen years of age, and his hands are so much dirtier. How do you account for that?

Sincerely,
IMA KOED.

Answer—That is easily accounted for. He is two years older than you.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am a boy sixteen years of age. One day last week I took a can of black paint and a brush and was painting the front door of our house, which was white, with the black paint. My father saw me, made me stop, and then ordered me away from his home. What is wrong with him?

Sincerely,
I. M. BROKE.

Answer—You say you were painting a white door with black paint and your father caught you at it and disowned you. Very simple. He doesn't want you to darken his doors again.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am blind in one eye. I went to a theater where the price of admission was $4. I told the ticket seller that I should pay only $2 for a ticket, as I was blind in one eye, and therefore was only able to see half the show. Wasn't I right?

Truly yours,
I. C. FAIR.

Answer: You were absolutely wrong. The price of the ticket was $4. You wanted to pay only $2 because you say you would have seen just half of the show, as you have but one eye. Because of that fact, I mean that you have only one eye, the ticket seller should have charged you $8 (double the price), as it would have taken you twice as long to see the whole show.

Cost of Engraving Stamps

The Post Office department says: "The cost of engraving a new postage stamp is from $300 to $500, depending on the size of the stamp and the amount of detail work. However, the department is reimbursed many times for this expense through the sale of the new stamp to collectors. Therefore, every new stamp issued is a source of profitable revenue to the government."

Do YOU Know—

That the month of May was named, some say, by Romulus in respect to the senators and nobles of his city who were called, "majores". Others claim it was named from Maia, the daughter of Atlas and the mother of Mercury.

IN MEMORY OF A BABY
By ANNE CAMPBELL

I DO not know why angel wings
Should flutter near me in the night
Then swinging, as a starling swings
Desert me for eternal flight.

I do not know why baby hands
Should cling one moment to my own,
Then reach for the celestial lands,
And leave me weeping all alone.

Perhaps by heaven's outer gate
There is a tiny sentinel,
Who waits, as I have learned to wait,
To hear the tolling of a bell.

I longed to keep a little soul
From this world's sadness undefiled,
And weep that by the starry goal,
Stainless, there waits a little child.

Practical and Smart

No single item in the young lady's summer wardrobe is more practical, comfortable and smart than a brief crocheted sweater, like the one here shown. If it is of mercerized crochet cotton in an openwork stitch it will be light and airy enough for the hottest day. This little blouse has a high square neck with four round brown buttons, very short sleeves, and fits tightly about the girlish waist.

Call for Dark Accents on White

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

HERE'S how to give your white costume an air of topnotch swank—touch it up with a few effective dark accents. The modes illustrated offer excellent suggestions in this direction.

What could be smarter than the white topcoat in the group here pictured with hat, scarf, gloves and bag done in bright green? Gingham accessory ensembles are good looking and chic, too, and then there are the new black velvet berets which are so fashionable worn with summer white apparel. Be sure to order a velvet neckpiece or scarf with your beret to make the picture complete.

The interesting worthwhile thing to keep in mind in regard to the coat pictured is that it is made of one of those new cotton coatings which are creating such a furore in the fabric realm not only because of their handsome appearance but particularly because of the fact that they launder as successfully as a pocket handkerchief. Then, too, these most attractive coatings tailor like quality-kind woolen.

The young girl seated is also wearing an all-cotton outfit, for about the most fashionable thing one can do this summer is to wear cotton from head to foot—silk hosiery of course taken for granted. Her suit (she has thrown the jacket over the back of her chair) is of white seersucker, which is a style note to jot down for it is a new gesture, this of tailoring one's jacket suit of ordinary crinkled seersucker. Her blouse is of a new cotton sheer (plume chiffon) which is delightfully cool and wearable in the summer time. It has a diminutive polka-dot on a dark background.

The other stylishly-clad young modern is wearing a white crepe spectator sports dress with the voguish dark note interpreted via a vestee with a wide sailor collar and matching cuffs of starched brown dotted swiss. Her footwear tunes in with the color scheme in that the "nifty" white kid spectator sport pumps which she wears have brown kid tips and heels. Her white crepe hat is banded with brown.

In this dark-with-white movement it is also good style to wear a gay plaided gingham coat with one's white frock or if preferred a coat fashioned of cotton ratine in monotone navy or brown or any desired colors.

A pleasing effect is also achieved when the belt (it should be wide) gloves and bag are dark in contrast to the white of the rest of the costume.

COTTONS APPEAR IN MANY DESIGNS

Medium pastels and white have greater consideration in the latest print showings of cottons and linens. Dark grounds, however, are more widely represented than last year, since they afford the most effective background to the very colorful designs that have gained in popularity.

Among prints the cleverest are coin spots and multicolored. The newest stripes have taken to blazer variations, and are particularly well regarded in seersuckers and piques for shirts and shorts. Plaids are wearable in multiple line variations, and have taken very strongly to multicolor. They appear in a wide variety of cottons, including sports weaves and sheers.

Candlewick Muslin Frocks Latest Thing in Fashions

Candlestick muslin evening frocks seem to be the last whisper in summer fashions. And for country or resort wear, they are impudently casual and completely effective.

Most of them come in the regulation unbleached muslin, with tufts of colored yarn in the good old candlewick fashion.

And to cap the climax, there's a candlewick "fur" coat-muslin with white tufting so thick that it looks at least a little like ermine, or something.

Supple Taffeta Popular in Variety of Designs

The vogue of taffeta is increasing daily. The old-fashioned stiff taffeta has disappeared, and the new fabrics are extremely supple and are used either for dresses or costumes.

Little tailleurs or one-piece dresses with a basque effect in front are the favorite theme for this material.

Worth sponsors taffeta costumes and ensembles not only in plain materials but in fancy designs. One of his most successful models is in black-and-white-checked taffeta with discreet gold lame threads.

Fig Leaf Is in Style

More and more are we getting back to nature in our clothes. Diamond fig leaves now trim our best coiffured hair, and carved in ivory or jade, fasten our Sunday-best pocketbook.

SMART CROCHET
By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Here is a winner when it comes to a collar and bib effect of cotton crochet. It is the sort you will be wanting to duplicate the moment you see it. It is easy to make and it will bring your navy or black summer sheer gown up into the very foreground of fashion. Works miracles in freshening up most any dress. The collar and frilly bib pictured is made of soft mercerized yellow crochet cotton. The tiny buttons down the front are covered with cotton crochet. The gloves are good looking, too. With all the emphasis in sports fashions laid on knitted and crochet articles, this pair of gauntlet gloves knitted of chardonize yarn becomes indispensable.

WHY WE ARE SUPPORTING CHADWICK FOR SHERIFF

First and foremost because he is an experienced officer, successful in tracing down criminals and seeing that they are brought to justice. Since October, 1910, when he came to this section he has been connected with law enforcement work. With twenty-two murder cases turned to him for investigation he has secured twenty-two arrests. He promises to use his full ability to make San Diego city and county safer for you and your family.

He is a heavy taxpayer and thereby helps pay the expense of the office of sheriff and deputies.

Chadwick joined the city police force of San Diego in 1910; soon thereafter, in 1914, he built a home at 2120 Warrington, when there were scarcely any houses in that section. He has lived there ever since, reared a family and seen the building of the Point Loma high school and many other improvements made near his property. Most of the trading done by the Chadwick family has been done in Ocean Beach, the children have gone to the schools of this section; young Dick is a graduate of Point Loma high school, has married a local girl, as well as been one of the outstanding members of the Ocean Beach ball team. The daughter Florence has made a real name for herself as champion rough water swimmer, and Mrs. Chadwick is well and favorably known to practically all local merchants.

The Chadwick's have shown a loyalty to Ocean Beach and Point Loma; now it's our turn to reciprocate and be loyal to them. Let's all vote for Chadwick at the primaries August 28.

Because of the estimated number of over seven million young people between the ages of 16 and 25 years out of employment, the first American Youths' Congress is in session this month at New York University, to solve this perplexing problem. The question of education relative to work and recreation is to be a vital point of discussion. There is need of establishing certain definite goals toward which the youth of America can anchor his ambition. Some future date near at hand is to bring about an educational system of par excellent value, and by its fruits the morale of young men is to increase with a working principle for making good American citizens.

Porto Rico is now under the Division of Territories and Island Possessions, a new division in the Interior Department. It was instead under the War portfolio. This transfer brings it under the same power as given Hawaii, Alaska and the Virgin Islands. There is still left under the War Department, the Philippines, but Canal Zone, Samoa, Guam and other minor Pacific possessions will remain under the Navy Department. This is supposed to be an economic move for greater efficiency in civic administration.

THE THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY: POINT LOMA

The lecture in the Temple of Peace on Point Loma last Sunday afternoon was opened by the reading of an extract from a resume of a sermon by Dr. Emerson Fosdick of New York, which embodies the views of this eloquent preacher on the abomination of war, and his noble pledge to further world peace. This was read by Lucien B. Copeland, the chairman, who then presented the speaker, Miss Helen Savage. During the course of her clear, very interesting and constructive address on "Cyclical Opportunities". Miss Savage showed how cycles, the habit of repetition, which is inherent in nature, manifested in man, and how the most seemingly unfortunate event could be turned into a wonderful opportunity for service to others as well as towards oneself. At the conclusion, of her introductory remarks, Miss Florence Collisson, Prof. C. M. Savage, and Orange Clark supported Miss Savage in answering questions, two of which were presented by Dr. G. de Purucker, the leader of the Point Loma Theosophists. From time to time, during the question and answer period, on several occasions lately Dr. de Purucker has risen to answer questions.

Next Sunday at 3 o'clock, Iverson L. Harris will deliver a forum-lecture on "The Path of Discipleship" in the Theosophical Temple on Point Loma. All are welcome. There will be music and an opportunity for the presentation of questions. The title will cover such aspects of the teachings as: the real doctrine of Christ; Teachers, and their pupils; the attainment of knowledge thru self-directed evolution, and the ancient schools of the mysteries. There will be music and an outdoor session of the lotus-circle will be held at the same hour.

Tong Murder Solved by Chadwick

This is another, and perhaps the most amazing story so far told by Richard W. Chadwick about some of San Diego's interesting crimes. It is a story of unusual interest because it presents a phase of Chinese tong life, and some of the innermost secrets of the tongs, secrets which it is seldom the lot of the white man to know. In preparing his campaign for Sheriff, Mr. Chadwick gathered together the data pertaining to some of the most interesting cases he had worked and presented them to the public in pamphlet form. The following is one of the cases so presented, but the details told here have never before appeared in print in any form.

Early in the spring of 1921 the cities of the Pacific coast were troubled by an outbreak of tong wars. Death followed death, and attacks upon chinese residents became so common that they were almost a daily occurence. San Diego however, at the time this story begins had not been bothered, but authorities here, especially Chadwick, who was on the Chinatown detail were holding their breath and expecting an outbreak at any moment.

So organized and constituted are the tongs, that when for any reason a member of one tong is killed by another, a secret hearing is held and the pro's and con's of the matter are considered by the tong leaders. From this hearing behind closed and locked doors comes the decision as to wheher or not it is a matter for the tong to revenge. If it be decided that revenge and the blood of a member of the killer's tong are necessary, an assesment is made not only upon the members of the local branch, but upon member tongs in sufficient number to finance the revenge and put a price upon the head of a member of the opposing tong. No member of any tong can withdraw during time of trouble, but must remain and do his bit if it be so ordered. It is not necessary that the blood flow from a member of the opposite tong in the same city in which the original killing was done; it appearing sufficient to satisfy tong honor that somewhere a member of the opposing tong has gone to meet his departed ancestors. For this reason, Chadwick was not surprised when in the early morning hours of June 21st, police headquarters received word that a young Chinese storekeeper had been killed by gunfire in his uncle's store in the heart of Chinatown. He knew even before he arrived at the scene that the murdered man was a member of the "Four Family Association", for he had kept a close account of the killings up and down the coast and knew that it was the turn of that group to lose a member by death. Needless to say his inquiry near the scene of the slaying brought no results. The usual cloud of secrecy hung heavy and impenetrable over the vicinity. All Chadwick knew when he left the premises was that Quong Young had passed to the great beyond from the effects of three automatic pistol slugs, fired into his body at close range. His only hope for information lay in the few non-chinese residents of the district. Appearing to have lightly passed off the matter as just another tong killing, Chadwick left the scene, but by the grapevine route sent word to two or three of the white denizens that he wanted to see them. From one of the persons he sent for he learned that two Chinese, Hong Foo and Wong Loy had been seen on the streets near the vicinity of the murder at an early hour of the morning. From his own personal files, a set of files possessed by no other white man in San Diego, Chadwick found that these two men were members of the opposing tong, the "Bing Kong". With another officer he promptly went first to the house of Hong Foo and then to that of Wong Loy, conducting an intensive search in each place without finding anything incriminating.

Quietly, unobtrusively, Chadwick prowled around the vicinity of the murder, and in a few days was rewarded by finding near a pile of lumber in the rear of a nearby house, the clip from an automatic pistol with three unexploded shells in it. He tore into the lumber pile and soon pulled it down, at the bottom he found a .38 caliber colt automatic pistol. He had several test bullets fired from this gun and compared with the bullets taken from the lifeless body of Quong Young; they were identical. Next day he learned that both Hong Foo and Wong Loy had been seen stacking the lumber pile a day after the murder. This was all he needed to cinch the matter in his mind. He took Wong Loy into custody but when he went for Hong Foo he found his man had fled. A tip that Foo might have taken the train for Los Angeles, prompted Chadwick to work fast. He wired Los Angeles to meet the train and look for Hong Foo. Soon he received word from Lieut. Fitzgerald of that department that the missing man was in custody. Chadwick went to Los Angeles and got his man from Lieut. Fitzgerald and left for San Diego. Imagine his shock and saddness when he arrived in San Diego with the elusive Hong Foo and learned that his friend Lieut. Fitzgerald had been shot to death by the notorous "Little Phil Olquin" just a few moments after he had left him.

Saddened and shocked by the slaying of his friend, Chadwick nevertheless proceeded with the preparations for the prosecution of Hong Foo and Wong Loy for the murder of Quong Young. Largely thru the picture he was able to paint before the judge and jury, Chadwick in a short time heard both of these tong killers sentenced to the State's penetentairy for life.

Another interesting story follows next week.

Gov. Merriam Offers Solution Economic Affairs

Just Program of Relief For Taxpayers and Mortgage Holders, Unemployment and Aged, Meets Whole-Hearted Approval San Diego Electorate.

San Diego county voters are lining up behind Governor Frank F. Merriam for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, William T. Hart of Carlsbad, prominent county developer and general chairman of Merriam-for-Governor club, said yesterday.

"Leaders in labor, social, industrial veterans, agricultural and club circles have found in Governor Merriam the attributes for public office they demand in a candidate — ability, integrity, intelligence, courage, energy, experience and a knowledge of the needs of every element of the population and of all sections of California," Hart declared.

"They also have found in his summary of issues and problems demanding prompt attention by the Governor and the Legislature a 10-point program which offers a just, speedy solution of our economic and social problems."

PROGRAM IN BRIEF

In brief, Governor Merriam's plan follows:

1. Additional relief should be extended to taxpayers thru an extension of time in which delinquent taxes or tax instalments must be paid.

2. A California reconstruction corporation should be formed to acquire bonds at current quotations, thus reducing principal and interest in favor of assessment payers.

3. Further relief should be afforded mortgage holders.

4. Tax legislation should be revised to permit payment of taxes semi-annually or quarterly.

5. A new effort should be made in behalf of the Central Valley Water Project.

6. A public works program equitably dstributing funds should be approved by the legislature.

7. Productive lands in small parcels should be set aside for use of those desiring this method of support "not in competition with farmers raising marketable crops".

8. An unemployment and old age relief plan should be established, funds to be deposited regularly in fixed amounts under a just apportionment from the employer, worker and state.

9. The school system should be maintained at its present high standard.

10. The civil service should be preserved.

In addition to the general committee, an ex-service men's organization is functioning with representatives of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Disabled American Veterans of the World War, United Spanish War Veterans, and Grand Army of Republic.

Pacific Beach Merriam-forGovernor headquarters is at Mission Blvd. and Garnet ave., with Charles O. Warren in charge.

FORMER DEPUTY ASSESSOR SAYS JOHNSON'S CLAIMS NOT SO

Ocean Beach News:

The county assessor, James Hervey Johnson, boasts that he is collecting taxes on millions and billions of dollars worth of securities presumably neglected by his predecessor, is all hooey.

Almost up to the time he assumed his office, these Security Tax Laws were still being revised and amended by our State Legislature until the public, the banks and even public officials found them difficult to cope with.

Prior to my recent retirement "for incompetency" I have as deputy assessor, collected these intangible taxes in the county for the past seven or eight years. The assessor's records will show this, also the trust departments of all the banks will vouch for same. As will the attorneys of the county along with trustees for Estates of the Spreckles, Scripps, Bridges and others. Mr. Johnson is now only cashing in on what his deputies dig up from my previous yearly returns. He hasn't a deputy in his service that can go out and make an intelligent appraisal and collection on stocks, bonds, debentures, chattels, etc.

SYNOPSIS

At the close of the Mexican war, Robin Kershaw, with his bride, rode into northeastern California. Here he found an ideal valley for cattle raising. They christened it Eden Valley. Below Eden Valley is a less valuable tract which Kershaw's wife names Forlorn Valley. Joel Hensley settles in the lower half of the valley. There is bad blood over fences and water. Kershaw kills Hensley and the blood-feud is on. By 1917, Rance Kershaw, his son Owen, and daughter Lorry are all that remains of one clan. Nate Tichenor is the sole survivor on the Hensley side. He goes to help Lorry in her car and finds her father has died of heart disease. Silas Babson, banker, schemes to control the irrigation and hydro-electric possibilities of Eden Valley. Nate and Owen, Lorry's brother, met in France just before Owen was killed, and Nate promised that if he survived Owen he would look after Lorry as a brother might do. With money advanced by Nate, Lorry clears up her indebtedness to Babson. Nate finds he is falling in love with Lorry. Babson discovers Nate is behind a rival power project. Nate tells Lorry he loves her. She admits she loves him, and they become engaged. Babson orders Joe Brainerd, editor of the local paper, to attack Nate as an enemy of the people. This Brainerd refuses to do. Nate comes to Brainerd's rescue financially. The editor celebrates by punching Babson's head. Pitt River Charley, a half-breed, makes an attempt to assassinate Nate.

"Who hired you, Charley?" Tichenor kept repeating patiently, while Tenney's arm rose and fell, with a momentary pause to give the killer time to answer.

"Babson—of the bank."

"And the price?"

"Five hundred—half down."

"You killed Jim Hensley eighteen years ago, didn't you?"

Silence.

"Guilty as h—l," Mr. Tenney murmured. "Court's adjourned. Slip the loop of the riata off'n his hands an' around his neck. I'll hist him with that hoss yonder."

"Not for a white man's sins, Rube. He's just fined two hundred and fifty dollars." He turned to Pitt River Charley. "You beat it the best way you know how down to Valley Center and have Doc Donaldson fix you up. Tell him to send the bill to Babson. And when you're well, fork your horse and get out of this country, because if I ever catch you inside the limits of this county I'm going to pull and get busy on you without further warning. Understood?"

The killer nodded humbly, they cast him loose and, sans his rifle, he shambled off down the road.

"What's Babson got ag'in you, Nate?" Rube Tenney demanded.

"Nothing. The poor fool thinks he has."

"You'd better let me down an' tunnel him," the practical Tenney pleaded. "He sure wants killin' an' when they ask for it that-a-way, I'm in favor of accomodatin' 'em.'

"Shut up, you loyal, lovable simpleton, and ride that horse of Joseph's back to the Circle K. He's cast a shoe. Set it and send him back to Joseph in the morning. Here comes my car. Good night, Rube, and thanks for your assistance. And remember! This thing never happened."

"There's fools, an' durned fools an' tarnation eediots, an' imbeeciles," Mr. Tenney roared, "and' you're all four rolled into one."

* * * * * * * *

Hope was again springing eternal in the Babson breast. He hoped, during the day, to have good news from Eden Valley, and for a Christian man he was faintly amazed at himself as he considered the fortitude with which he awaited the expected tidings.

His poise was considerably shattered, therefore, when Nate Tichenor strolled into the bank and greeted him cordially. "Nice growing weather, Mr. Babson," he opined, as he took the visitor's chair beside the banker's desk.

Babson was wondering if this cool, well-bred worldling had escaped Pitt River Charley, and, if so, had Pitt River Charley told! How much did this devil, Nate Tichenor, know?

"Pitt River Charley made my aunt a widow, and I've been trying to figure out why you sent him to make me join my ancestors," said Nate. "I think I know the reason. You're afraid of me. You think that with me out of the way you can get the Eden Valley water without fuss and feathers."

"I—I—I don't know—what you're talking—about, Nate."

"Well, listen to me just the same. If you want a fight, you can have it, and I'll be sporty about it, too. I'll not put Pitt River Charley in the witness chair. Word of honor, I'll not. I'll fight you on the merits of the case and may the best man win. But don't send another killer after me. Do you know what I'm talking about now?"

"I think I do, Tichenor."

"After a while you'll be sure of it. Remember, whatever you do, short of murder, is O. K. with me. I'm more than nine years old and can take care of myself. Well, good-by. I'll see you at the mass meeting this afternoon."

By the time the bank closed at twelve o'clock, Babson had recovered his composure. Strange fellow, this Nate Tichenor. So he was going to fight the fight on its merits, eh? Well, if he'd stick to that resolve Babson knew he would defeat him. . . . Said he'd be at the mass meeting, eh?

"Henry," Babson called in dulcet tones, "come here."

Mr. Rookby obediently reported at his master's desk.

"Henry, this fellow Nate Tichenor is going to fight us all over the lot this afternoon if we give him half a chance," he began. "He must not have that chance. I want you to scatter around in the crowd and plant quite a number of hecklers and interrupters. I'll open the meeting and before I get through with Tichenor they'll want to lynch him. Then when he tries to address the crowd I want him cried down, booed off the platform, rough-housed, if necessary."

"Leave it to me," Mr. Rookby assured Babson. "I owe the skunk a poke myself. I know just what to do."

Shortly after luncheon at the Circle K ranch as Lorry Kershaw was about to enter her coupe and drive to Valley Center, Rube Tenney came out of the house with two six-shooters in shoulder holsters under his arms. Lorry saw them as he struggled into his coat.

"Well, who are you out to kill today, Rube?" she queried jocularly.

"Nobody, I hope, but somebody if I have to. You heeled, Miss Lorry?"

"Certainly not. Why should I be?"

"You're goin' down to that mass meetin' in Valley Center, ain't you?"

"Yes."

"So's Nate Tichenor. I listened to some talk while I was in town the other day an' it seems folks got an idea Nate's goin' to try to keep from Forlorn Valley the water they're fixin' to grab out of Eden Valley creek. Somebody's worked up a undercurrent feelin' ag'in Nate. I'm sorter cautious; I like to have a few capable friends in a crowd that ain't friendly to me."

Lorry got out of the car, entered the house, strapped a six-shooter, with a full belt of cartridges, around her waist, slipped on a light coat to conceal her armament and got behind the wheel again. Rube Tenney slipped in beside her, and they rolled away for Valley Center.

A crowd of perhaps five hundred persons occupied the temporary board benches Babson had provided in the plaza and Babson was on a raised platform just opening the meeting when Rube and Lorry arrived.

He was a good speaker, clear and incisive, and had a trick of uttering those catch phrases which aroused the unthinking. Babson proceeded to outline the method of organizing an irrigation district, reminded his listeners that there was but one source of supply, to wit, the waters of Eden Valley creek, down which hundreds of thousands of acre-feet of water went to waste annually, as well they knew. More applause. Babson next proceeded to dilate on his plan for tapping Eden Valley creek in the Handle, leading it to the natural reservoir he had discovered and thence down into Forlorn Valley. Adroitly he painted a picture of future prosperity, of bumper crops, of increased land values, of happy homes and the smiling faces of little children. And then, suddenly clenching his fist, he yelled:

"But this silver cloud we see before us has a dark and dismal lining, my friends. We have in Eden Valley three riparian owners, Nathan Tichenor, the Mountain Valley Power company, of which this same Tichenor is also sole owner, and Miss Lorraine Kershaw, sole heir to the Circle K ranch. They have conspired to deprive us of those waste waters for their own selfish ends. Nate Tichenor informs me that his company plans to erect a power station below his proposed dam and manufacture hydro-electric power. I say, here and now, to Nate Tichenor, that I think he lies. He proposes erecting that dam for the purpose of impounding the flood waters and selling them to Forlorn Valley at an exorbitant rate.

"I have here a petition to the county board of supervisors, requesting permission to organize the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district. It is necessary that every farmer in the valley whose lands are susceptible to inclusion within the district should sign the petition before this meeting adjourns. This way, my friends. Don't crowd."

Nate Tichenor walked quietly upon the platform, bowed to Babson, and then to the crowd. "I am that Nate Tichenor of whom you have just heard," he began.

"Throw him out!" a voice cried harshly.

A dead cat sailed over the heads of the crowd and struck Nate in the face. Overripe tomatoes and cantaloupes followed in a veritable barrage and, as with one voice, the crowd shouted: "Throw the outlaw out. . . . The dirty killer, throw him out. Does he think we're crazy? Kill him. Lynch him. Tar and feather him!"

"That's right," a voice cried shrilly. It was Henry Rookby's. "We haven't any tar handy, but up the street a block they're spreading crude oil to bind the top dressing of gravel on the highway. Give him a bath in that, spill a feather mattress over him and send him back to Eden Valley."

There was a rush of a dozen men toward Tichenor. They swarmed over him, punching and kicking him; presently, bloody and disheveled, he was on their shoulders and they were running up Valley Center boulevard with him, with the crowd following. At the tail of the crowd Henry Rookby flitted, cheering on the work.

"So you organized this, did you?" Lorry Kershaw's voice spoke in his ear. "Tag! You're out!" And she brought the barrel of her pistol down on his head. He screamed and staggered and with the fury of a vixen she struck him again and felled him to the pavement. Then a huge form thrust into the crowd.

"Gangway, animals," Rube Tenney was roaring, striking out left and right with his guns and clearing a path for himself and Lorry, who, with drawn pistol, guarded her henchman's rear. A man grabbed at her weapon and instantly she fired, the bullet taking effect in the man's leg.

At the sound of the shot the crowd scattered like quail. To left and right they fled, into shops and vacant lots; and up the street Tenney and Lorry saw a dozen men spilling crude oil over Nate Tichenor, while another stood by ripping open a pillow. This one Lorry Kershaw dropped where he stood, while Rube Tenney ran forward and commenced smashing into them. They dropped their victim and closed in on Rube; they got one of his guns and beat him over the head with it; when he fell they kicked him. But not for long. Lorry Kershaw, standing forty feet away, brought her gun up five times; five times she fired—and in the center of Valley boulevard Rube Tenney lay, face down, with five men stretched around him. Behind the girl Henry Rookby and one other man were stretched.

Swiftly the girl reloaded her gun and came down the street, seeking in the crowd on each side for Silas Babson. They knew whom she was seeking, knew that the blood of generations of fighting Kershaws flamed in her veins and that, if she found Babson, she would kill him.

From his office in the little town calaboose Bill Rooney waddled forth, six-shooter in hand. "Put up that gun, Miss Kershaw," he commanded. "You're under arrest."

"So you took pains to hide yourself while this outrage was being consummated, didn't you, Rooney? You knew it was going to happen. The whole thing was planned." She brought her gun up and fired; Rooney's high pinched hat flew off his head and he scuttled back to the haven of his jail office, leaving Lorry Kershaw to parade down one side of Valley boulevard and up the other, searching for Silas Babson.

* * * * * * * *

Very shortly after the inception of a riot, a doctor and a newspaper man will be found at the fringe of the disturbance. Doctor Donaldson, hearing shouts, screams, and pistol shots, locked his office and, familiar black bag in hand, descended hurriedly into Valley boulevard. Joe Brainerd, swept along with the mob, raced for his office and returned with his camera in time to see Lorry Kershaw shoot Bill Rooney's high sombrero off his head. Not realizing that the girl was doing trick shooting, both Brainerd and Donaldson ran after her—an action which in all probability, saved Silas Babson's life, for Lorry had located him in the plaza and was hurrying to get to closer range before opening fire on him. Joe Brainerd grasped her shooting arm and Doctor Donaldson grasped her left.

"No, no," the little editor soothed. "Nothing like that, Miss Kershaw. It's too expensive—and, besides, he'll keep."

The girl burst into tears of futile fury and struggled with the two men. "They've killed Nate and Rube, and Babson organized the killing," she wailed. "Let me go, let me go. There's nothing left in life for me now except to kill that man. I'll avenge Nate! I'll avenge him, I tell you. Hear me? I'll even the score if I hang for it. Let me go! This isn't your party. The Kershaws pay their debts; Babson said Nate and I were outlaws, and I'll make good on that."

She Brought Her Gun Up and Fired.

"All right—but tomorrow, after you've thought it over and made certain Nate is dead," the doctor objected. "Come now, don't be a little wildcat. You've killed enough men for today."

"I haven't killed anybody. I've just wing-tipped them," Lorry protested sobbingly. "I've run the Kershaw brand on them, so they can't get away and we'll catch them and hang them; but Babson dies today."

The doctor twisted the loaded pistol out of her grasp. "He'll keep, I tell you, Miss Kershaw," he roared, and shook her roughly. "And if Tichenor hasn't been killed, Babson belongs to him."

Her fury passed as suddenly as it had mounted. "You're right, doctor, that scoundrel will keep. No good killing him unless the job's worth while." She looked up at him with brimming eyes. "But if his people have killed Nate Tichenor, they've killed my promised man and if they've killed Rube Tenney they've killed my hired man—and that's a killing matter with the Clan Kershaw. We don't forget," she panted. "We pay our debts. Oh—oh—oh, if Owen were only here—we'd—we'd—run this mob into—the hills—"

"Here's a shoulder to cry on, girl," Joe Brainerd told her. "Doc, on your way. Babson's work is done and yours is just commencing."

In a minute Lorry pulled herself together. "Cry-baby! I hate cry-babies," she ground out rebelliously. "Give me my gun, Mr. Brainerd"—for the doctor had handed the weapon to the editor—"and I'll promise not to kill anybody except in self-defense."

He returned the gun, and the girl started resolutely up the street. At the scene of the oil-and-feather episode, Doctor Donaldson, assisted by his lone colleague in Valley Center, was dragging Rube Tenney clear of the fallen; standing aside, swaying on his feet, naked to the waist, filthy with road oil, disheveled and bloody and swollen of face, Nate Tichenor stood looking on. Swiftly Lorry ran to him; dirty, oily, and gory as he was, she took him in her arms and kissed him—and Joe Brainerd marveled at the calmness of her tone as she asked:

"Are you badly hurt, darling?"

"I think I could do with a week in bed," he muttered thickly. "I'm punched and kicked apart. Side and back hurts—broken ribs, I think." He fingered his nose. "Seems O. K. but the teeth in my left jaw feel loose. Who—who did all the shooting?"

TO BE CONTINUED.

Famous Duel Between Henry Clay and John Randolph Made Them Good Friends

A noted duel took place just over the Chain Bridge, on the Virginia side, between Henry Clay and John Randolph of Roanoke, recalls a writer in the Washington Star.

Henry Clay, an American statesman, was born in Virginia, April 12, 1777. When he was twenty-one he was admitted to the bar, and began practice at Lexington, Va. He was very successful, and was made United States senator in 1806. In 1811 he was elected speaker of the house of representatives.

During John Adam's administration, Henry Clay was secretary of state and performed the duties of that office with great ability. He was candidate for the Presidency several times but was not successful.

John Randolph was also an American statesman and a great politician. He was born in Virginia June 2, 1773.

In 1779 he was sent to congress and became noted for his wit, his fluency, and the sharpness of his remarks. He seemed to take pleasure in annoying Clay.

The duel between them was the result of a speech John Randolph made in which the word "blackleg" was used in connection with the administration. Clay resented it and took it as a personal thrust.

John Randolph insisted upon fighting the duel in Virginia. To this Clay agreed. Randolph chose pistols. The distance was ten paces.

The law in Virginia prohibited dueling, and this was mentioned to Randolph, who replied that as Henry Clay would be the only one to shoot, the statute could have no personal application to himself.

Fortunately no one was hurt, as Randolph fired into the air, as he had said he would.

Clay put a ball through Randolph's coat. He had a very narrow escape, as it grazed his side.

They left the field apparently good friends.

"ETIQUETTE," "THE BLUE BOOK OF SOCIAL USAGE," ETC.

IN THE DINING ROOM

DEAR Mrs. Post: Is it important enough to matter in which direction the cutting edge of the dinner knife should be laid—toward the plate or away from it?

Answer: Toward it, because when picked up it comes more easily to hand. All details of table setting are important because lack of precision spoils the effect of perfection exactly as even a few errors mar the whole page of a letter.

My dear Mrs. Post: I had dinner the other night in the house of a hostess who placed napkins on the right side of the plate instead of on the left side. This is the first time I have encountered the reversed practice. Is it a new idea? If so, is it correct according to etiquette?

Answer: There is no rule as to whether the napkin is put left, right, or crossways above the plate. All these positions are permissible only in houses of limited service in which it is necessary that food be put at the places. In houses with plenty of servants, no food is put at the places before people are seated, and the napkin is put in its correct position on the service plate.

Dear Mrs. Post: A friend tells me that according to latest modern fashion your column was behind the times in saying that deputy hostesses serve the tea and chocolate at a formal tea introducing a debutante. I am told all serving is done by servants.

Answer: I have no idea whose column your friend is quoting, but it was not mine. Never in any times have deputy hostesses poured either at a formal tea or at a wedding collation. To quote my own book in the edition published in 1922: "At the most formal type of tea, the tea table is exactly like that at a wedding reception, in that it is a large table set as a buffet, and is always in charge of the caterer's men, or the hostess' own butler or waitress and assistants. It is never presided over by deputy hostesses."

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it necessary to use individual butter knives when bread and butter plates are not used?

Answer: Of course not. There would be nowhere to put them.

WE WOULD LIKE TO CELEBRATE

DEAR Mrs. Post: I have two sons coming home from abroad with their wives, whom I have never met. I would like to entertain rather informally when they are here so that many people will be able to meet them. What kind of party would you suggest that I give, and tell me how to write the invitations?

Answer: An afternoon tea is the simplest party to give and very suitable to such an occasion. Write across your visiting card:

To meet Mrs. John Jones
and Mrs. Henry Jones
Sat., Sept. 23,
Tea at 5 o'clock.

On the day of the tea your daughters-in-law would receive with you. Have the table set in your dining room. Serve tea and either fruit punch or coffee or chocolate, as well as sandwiches and cake, but nothing else. Or, if you prefer an evening hour, then write on your double visiting card:

To meet
Mr. and Mrs. John Jones
and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jones
Sat. Eve., Sept. 23, at 9 o'clock.

Serve sandwiches, salad, ice cream, cake, fruit punch and coffee. Otherwise, details the same as for a tea.

My dear Mrs. Post: Mother and father will have their silver wedding anniversary late this month. They are not planning to entertain, but I would like to have something for them, because I am very proud that at the end of twenty-five years together they are still ideally happy. What could I do? Perhaps I ought to tell you that I am single and live with them, but we belong to a country club where I could entertain without having them know beforehand.

Answer: You might give a dinner and invite the few people they like best. Or, if you want to ask many people, you might have a tea for them, or an informal evening reception, which would be exactly the same excepting that you will have to have a little more to eat. You should ask people verbally and tell them it is to be a surprise party. A wedding cake with white icing, but decorated with silver—if this appeals to you—and as much silver decoration as you can think of would be suitable.

The Natchez Trace

Back in pioneer days when the first boatmen made their way with their crude produce-laden craft down the Cumberland, the Tennessee, the Ohio and the Mississippi to New Orleans the Natchez Trace played a large part, says Literary Digest. This was an overland route of about 550 miles, the merest trace through woods and swamps from Nashville to Natchez. It ran through country that is now Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi.

LIBERTY SONG

By THAYER WALDO

©, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

THE man in the officer's chair lit a fresh cigar and angrily flung the match aside.

"Cockeyed, idiotic business!" he snarled.

"A whole production tied up while we sit here waiting for some wop bum to be dragged in off the streets. It's the damnedest thing I ever heard of!"

Stuart Booth eyed him contemptuously and said nothing.

Fiberg made a gesture of conciliation.

"Now listen, Nick," he begged; "be reasonable a little, couldn't you? Ain't the only chance we got worth anyhow a try?"

"Yes; I should think, Hormell," Booth put in coldly, "that after all the fuming you've done over this part, you might see how my suggestion works out before you start crabbing."

The director twisted swiftly around in the chair to face him, snapping:

"Look here, Stuart; I never agreed to this wild notion of yours, and I won't pretend to now. Here we have a scene that needs an operatic star, and you talk 'em into going after a dago banana peddler you've heard yodeling behind his pushcart. If I'm expected to enthuse over that—well, it's a laugh, that's all."

"All right; now we'll just add the rest of it: you want an Italian tenor, yet you can't afford anyone big for such a small role. There's no foreign language singer available on the lot, so where are you? Stuck. And then when I offer the one idea that may solve your problem, you beef!"

"Well," Hormell grumbled, "it simply doesn't sound sensible. If he was going into a chorus. . . . But the man's got to do a solo, and—"

"Hey, look!" Fiberg had turned toward the sound stage entrance.

"Is that him?"

The others swung around.

Just inside the door stood a little round man in baggy trousers and a gay lavender shirt.

His great mop of black curls was uncovered and the olive moon face beneath showed gentle perplexity.

Stuart Booth went forward, calling:

"Hello, Pietro! Come right over here."

The Latin's teeth gleamed in a wide slow smile.

"Ah, Signor Boot'! You send for me, si? Dey no tell me—joost say, 'You Pietro Pasquale? Come to da studio.' I don't know what ees, but here I am."

Hormell had approached and was staring critically at the Italian.

Before Booth could speak again, he said curtly:

"All right, Tony—let's hear you sing."

The small dark man gazed up with polite incomprehension and replied:

"Excuse, plees; da name she's Pietro, an' I don't know joost what you talk. Maybe you joke, si?"

"Keep still a minute," Booth said sharply to the director; "give me a chance to explain to him. . . . Listen, old timer; we're in a fix here; you can help us out and, incidentally, make yourself fifty dollars for a couple of hours' work—just singing."

The fellow made a quick little bow and said:

"Sure, sure; she's made me very happy to do somet'eengs for you."

The set across the stage, however, had caught his eye and he started to wander off toward it.

The actor grasped his arm as Hormell let out a snort of exasperation and demanded:

"Well, are we going through with the farce, or is this gentleman just a sightseer?"

"That's what I'm saying," Fiberg agreed.

"He acts like he was doing us a favor. What's the big idea?"

Pietro met the producer's scowl with grave dignity.

"Excuse, plees," he corrected; "she's only for Signor Boot' I do eet."

Fiberg gaped incredulously a moment; then:

"Say, what's the matter from you?" he yelped.

"Nobody's asking you should do anything gratis. Fifty smackers you get for just one song—even if you don't sing very good, maybe!"

Again that broad calm smile spread over the swart features.

"That ees all right, signor. I'm love to seeng, anyhows."

Once more he commenced to stroll away. Stuart Booth cried:

"But, Pietro! It has to be done this afternoon—right now!"

The Italian halted at once, a mildly shocked surprise entering his expression.

"Oh—si? Excuse, plees; I'm not understan'."

A savage groan from Hormell.

"Listen, Booth," he bawled; "either you get that spaghetti gobbler warbling in the next two minutes, or I quit. Savvy?"

The actor glared sourly at him and turned again to Pietro, explaining:

"You see, there's an Italian sequence in the picture we're making. Several of us are traveling along a mountain road and we come to a small inn. The proprietor's sitting on the piazza, carrying wood and singing some air from an opera. Now that's what we want you for! Can you do it?"

Pietro laughed—a full and carefree sound with no hint of scorn in it.

"Why, sure!" he exclaimed buoyantly.

"You mean like dees?"

Back went his head, a breath was taken, and suddenly there poured forth a rich torrent of golden melody as he began an aria from "I Pagliacci."

It rose and swelled and filled the great room with glorious music.

In a moment people from all over the stage had gathered round.

Not a note in all that song was less than perfection.

Long before he had finished, Fiberg and the director were huddled together, whispering excitedly.

Even Stuart Booth was astonished.

At last it ended and the little Italian gazed about him, a trifle startled.

Then Hormell and the producer were rushing forward in a dual fever of ingratiation.

"Say, that's the finest thing I ever gave a listen to!" Fiberg chattered.

And the director:

"Marvelous! Where have you been hiding all these years?"

In a quick aside to Booth, he breathed: "My G—d, man—why didn't you tell me about this sooner? He's the greatest find I've ever run across!"

Fiberg, an arm about the singer's shoulders, was talking rapidly:

"Now, Mr. Pasquale, here's the way I'm figuring it. You'll want to do a couple of small parts and then we star you. How about a six months' contract with options, at—well, say two hundred and fifty a week?"

The three studio men waited, their eyes upon the Latin's face.

For an instant bewilderment was there; then slowly he looked from one to the other with something very like disbelief.

"Joost a meenute," he said finally; "Maybe I'm don't understan' again. You want that I come here every day and seeng for da peectures, si?"

They nodded.

Pietro Pasquale made a queer small noise in his throat and stepped back, shaking free of the producer's embrace.

"Excuse, plees!" He spoke with a ringing firmness. "She's very kind of you—but, no!"

"You—you mean you're refusing the contract?"

"Si, signor."

Palpably he was in dead earnest.

"Listen, plees: When I am a boy een Milano, always I seeng, joost for happiness. Den one day somebody she's hear me an' say, You mus' study for da career! I am young fool, so I do eet. Five, six year I keep on, at las' get een La Scala opera an' pret' soon have da name een lights. Bravo, bravo! But all da joy she's gone when each night I have to seeng so much, so long. So now I have geeve all dat up an' come here where I can poosh da cart to make enough for Rosita an' da bambinos an' me. Seeng? Signor, I do eet for gladness, but she's not enough money een all da world to buy from Pietro a song ever again!"

Nevada Marsh Yields Rich Sodium Sulphate

Sodium sulphate, once a plentiful by-product of nitric and hydrochloric acid manufacture, has become relatively scarce in this country because of recent changes in the manufacturing processes of those acids, writes P. C. Rich in Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering. Just when it began to appear that the United States would have to depend on imports for its sodium sulphate, an isolated desert marsh began to yield this chemical in practically pure form. This strange deposit, where sodium sulphate, or a "glaubers salt" can be scooped up by steam shovel is known as Rhodes Marsh, and is located in Mineral county, Nevada.

A few years ago, P. S. Williams, a chemical engineer at one time associated with a concern producing sodium sulphate from Carrizo lake, California, came across an old report of Prof. Joseph LeConte, geology professor at the University of California, in which mention was made of an enormous deposit of glaubers salt at Rhodes. In 1928 he was able to interest a group of San Francisco men who spent considerable time prospecting the deposit, surveying the markets, and investigating processes for recovery of the sulphate. The first plant was erected in 1930. With the experience thus gained as a basis, a program of improvement was initiated late in 1932.

Rhodes Marsh is roughly circular in shape. The mineralized section is about 200 acres in area and covered with 6 inches to 2 feet of silt. On the south half of the deposit, a 15-foot layer of glaubers salt is found immediately under the overburden; in places it has been found to be present at a depth of 80 feet.

Mother at Seven

A case of a child born to a seven-year-old girl, reported by Dr. Hilda Keane, of Victoria Zenana hospital, Delhi, is mentioned in the British Medical Journal. An unmarried Mohammedan girl was admitted to hospital on March 18, 1932," says Doctor Keane. Her age, as given by her father, was seven. Her general development was good, and she had fair intelligence. Her height was only 3 feet 11 inches, and her weight only 48 pounds. She still had her milk teeth. A living female child was born weighing 4 pounds 3 ounces. Beyond suffering from fright for the first three days, the mother made a perfect recovery and was able to nurse her child for nine months.

GOODWILL IN JULY SHOWS BIG INCREASE

Rev. Myron Insko, superintendent of the San Diego county Goodwill Industries, who was until recently pastor of the Point Loma M. E. church, has just issued his regular monthly report to the Goodwill directors. In it he calls attention to the wonderful growth of the organization during the past year. In July 1934 the total income was 96% in excess of that for July 1933, and the amount expended in wages was 130% in excess of the figure a year ago. The wage roll last month was the highest in the history of the organization, making this institution a very valuable and increasingly helpful aid in the restoration of prosperity.

While more than thirty men and women were employed daily during the month, it was necessary to turn away nearly two hundred, a few each day, for lack of sufficient cast-offs to give them work in the process of restoration. Mr. Insko therefore urges that more materials for which the present owners have no further use be sent in at the earliest possible moment so that the demand for honest labor may be met in greater measure.
